

FAQ for 7/18/19

As you know, we are in full “construction mode” here at TRS, but Camp Rodef Shalom has continued in full swing. Thanks to good communication and impressive professionalism, the contractors and the camp staff have been able to work quite well with each other. Our contractors have been wonderfully flexible, including letting people park on the unfinished new parking lot one day this week to accommodate the annual Camp Carnival (which included rides!) set up in the old parking lot. Last week, our youngest campers made and presented goody bags to the construction workers. Meanwhile, the camp staff went above and beyond during and after last week’s rain event– we are so grateful for their help in setting up temporary barricades during the heaviest of the rain, and helping with the ensuing clean up! It took over a week for the professionals to remove the mud from the Multipurpose Room, so that space was unavailable for camp to use. Despite this unexpected (and significant) hurdle, camp has carried on smoothly, and the campers and camp staff are having a fabulous summer!
