

Weekly Update 11.15.19

I love looking at the photo above, for it tells a story about three different parts of our construction. First of all, you can see that the roof is getting an overhaul. Not only was it looking shabby, but there are leaks in many places. All that will be fixed, and we're putting some solar panels on the roof as well! Next, if you look where the construction workers are – that will be the foyer for the Small Sanctuary, a space that will look similar in design to our current Grand Hall and the future location of the beautiful Donor Wall. Lastly, the main part of the photo shows us the opening from the Small Sanctuary onto the terrace and the terrace itself. I am beyond excited to see how that space will be used – for a service, for a small gathering, as a spot for some quiet meditation. It's going to be fabulous!
