

Weekly Update 11.7.19

Our building project is a lot like a jigsaw puzzle, and now we can start to see how some of the disconnected pieces are starting to come together. More specifically, it is fascinating to see how the clergy/classroom addition will join to our current building, both on the main level (where Beth Silver's office used to be) and on the school level (where two classrooms used to be). Here are photos from the last few months to show the progression:
